Strategic Planning for Research Reactors International Atomic Energy Agency,2017-04-30 This publication is a revision of IAEA TECDOC 1212 which primarily focused on enhancing the utilization of existing research reactors This updated version also provides guidance on how to develop and implement a strategic plan for a new research reactor project and will be of particular interest for organizations which are preparing a feasibility study to establish such a new facility This publication will enable managers to determine more accurately the actual and potential capabilities of an existing reactor or the intended purpose and type of a new facility At the same time management will be able to match these capabilities to stakeholders users needs and establish the strategy of meeting such needs In addition several annexes are presented including some examples as clarification to the main text and ready to use templates as assistance to the team drafting a strategic plan

Jonesy #1 Sam Humphries, 2016-02-10 Jonesy is a self-described cool dork who spends her time making zines nobody reads, watching anime, and listening to riot grrrl bands and 1D simultaneously. But she has a secret nobody knows: She has the power to make people fall in love with anything. She's a cupid in plaid. With a Tumblr, there's only one catch: it doesn't work on herself. She's gonna have to find love the old-fashioned way and in the meantime figure out how to distract herself from the real emotions she inevitably has to face when her powers go wrong.

Affective Health and Masculinities in South Africa Hans Reihling, 2020 Affective Health and Masculinities in South Africa explores how different masculinities modulate substance use, interpersonal violence, suicidality, and AIDS, as well as recovery, cross-culturally. With a focus on three male protagonists living in very distinct urban areas of Cape Town, this comparative ethnography shows that men's struggles to become invulnerable increase vulnerability. Through an analysis of masculinities as social assemblages, the study shows how affective health problems are tied to modern individualism rather than African tradition, which has become a cliché in Eurocentric gender studies. Affective health is conceptualized as a balancing act between autonomy and connectivity that, after colonialism and apartheid, has become compromised through the imperative of self-reliance. This book provides a rare perspective on young men's vulnerability in everyday life that may affect the reader and spark discussion about how masculinities in relationships shape physical and psychological health. Moreover, it shows how men change in the face of distress in ways that may look different than global health and gender-transformative approaches envision. Thick descriptions of actual events over the life course make the study accessible to both graduate and undergraduate students in the social sciences. Contributing to current debates on mental health and masculinity, the volume will be of interest to scholars from a number of disciplines, including anthropology, gender studies, African studies, psychology, and global health.
